

A Message from Artistic Director, Torri Airhart

As I sit here on a warm summer day I am brimming with excitement and anticipation for my first launch into a full season as your Artistic Director!

When we wrapped up our successful June concerts - the “reboot” - I encouraged you that after a day (or twos) break I would be launching right back into preparing for the upcoming season - and we have done just that!

I am excited to report that we have an amazing artistic team assembled for this new chapter in ARC’s story, and the “dream team” is as eager to work with you and get into this new music as I am!

John, Michelle, Lisa - along with our amazing accompanists, Garret, Reina, Lorel, will all have a huge positive impact on the musical life and community in ARC moving forward. I am grateful to have them.

And I am thrilled to announce our newest ensemble - Something Good, that will start to meet a new niche - of social outreach - that will also stretch us in new directions. This group, meeting on Wednesday afternoons will take the ARC community and music into needful places that we have not previously engaged with.

Our theme for this next season is “I’ll Meet You There”. And how appropriate that after the years of disconnect and lock down we are going to build on a multitude of ways of looking through this message. ARC is embarking on its new chapter, and I am so enthused to take this journey with you! Whether you are a veteran or a “newbie”, we are delighted to enfold you into this community and to make amazing music together. Can’t wait to see you in September - “I’ll Meet You There!”
